"Race," Rights and the Law in the Supreme Court of Canada: Historical Case Studies James W. St.G. Walker, James W. St. G. Walker

Four cases in which the legal issue was race that of a Chinese restaurant owner who was fined for employing a white woman; a black man who was refused service in a bar; a Jew who wanted to buy a cottage but was prevented by the property owners association; and a Trinidadian of East Indian descent who was acceptable to the Canadian army but was rejected for immigration on grounds of race drawn from the period between 1914 and 1955, are intimately examined to explore the role of the Supreme Court of Canada and the law in the racialization of Canadian society. With painstaking research into contemporary attitudes and practices, Walker demonstrates that Supreme Court Justices were expressing the prevailing common sense about race in their legal decisions. He shows that injustice on the grounds of race has been chronic in Canadian history, and that the law itself was once instrumental in creating these circumstances. The book concludes with a controversial discussion of current directions in Canadian law and their potential impact on Canada's future as a multicultural society. "
