History of the 21St Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry in the War of the Rebellion (Classic Reprint) S. S. Canfield

The task assigned me at the reunion of the 21st .R egiment, Ohio Infantry Volunteers, held at Rawson, on the 7th and 8th of September, 1892, is completed to the best of my ability, and the means at my command. Up to the time of the battle of Chickamauga, September 20, 1863, no reports of the operations of the Regiment had been made, no record of its marches, battles or campaigns existed, except the brief report of the battle of Stone s River, by Colonel Neibling, herein given. At the battle on Snodgrass Hill, or Missionary Ridge, on the afternoon of the 20th of September, 1863, than which but few more sanguinary battles are recorded in history, the services of the 21st Ohio are practically ignored. General Brannan in his report mentions it last, in a list of four regiments, by which he was reinforced at intervals, but in an additional or amended report he mentions it more favorably. Van Horn and Turchin mention it favorably, but neither of them were present to know of its services. The commanding officers of the 35th Ohio and 2d Minn, both agree in saying, those regiments relieved the 21st Ohio about 2:30 p. rn.
