A Cornishman Cruises the Western Mediterranean (A Cornishman Goes Cruising) (Volume 3) George Williams

Cornishman George Williams discovered he had a fear of flying very early in his life and he assumed he would never be able to visit far-away places. His wife Deb put up with his phobia and holidays were never further away than the near continent until the year 2000. This marked their silver wedding anniversary and to celebrate they booked a cruise to Eastern Europe. They fell in love with holidays at sea and have now travelled all over the world on cruise ships. Over the years there have been a number of destinations that impressed them so much that they have gone back on several occasions. One area of the world that has become a firm favourite is the Mediterranean and they have cruised there almost annually. This book takes a look at some of those cruises and focusses on holidays in the Western Mediterranean visiting, France, Italy and Spain as well as Gibraltar. It also gives some ideas of why cruising is such a popular alternative to flying.
